Ecuador: The movement to oust President Arosemena has gained new strength as a result of his drunken display at the public reception on 20 December for Chilean President Alessandri.

Many newspapers demand his removal, the military leaders agree that he is unfit to hold office, and the leaders of several political parties have initiated procedures to call a special session of Congress to impeach him.

The lack of cohesion among Arosemena's opponents, combined with the general reluctance to do anything during the Christmas holidays, may enable Arosemena to last out the remainder of the year.

Communist China - Mongolia: The announcement on 23 December that Communist China and Mongolia will soon conclude a border agreement reflects Peiping's anxiety to iron out frontier differences with its neighbors. The Chinese have signed boundary accords with Burma and Nepal, and are discussing their boundary with Pakistan. []

Chinese troops had repeatedly violated the 2,500-mile Sino-Mongolian frontier.
